(peak of light), El Ehecatepetl (peak of air), El Cihuapapolotzin (peak of the butterfly), El Tlamintepetl (peak of the wounded), El Chalchitepetl (peak of the treasure), and El Ocelotepetl (peak of the tiger). One of these cerros has been an important archaeological site since 1895, when a stone temple of a Tepoztecan deity was unearthed. This temple and the great scenic beauty of the village has attracted many tourists in recent years.

The cerros which surround the village form a natural fortress, and the rugged hilly country of which they are a part has served as a refuge from attack at various times in the history of Tepoztlán and is ideally suited for guerrilla warfare. According to ancient Tepoztecan legend the cerros served as defensive outposts against hostile peoples long before the Conquest. When the Spaniards first came to the village in 1521, Tepoztecans fled to the cerros; and more recently during the Revolution of 1910-20, when Tepoztlán was the scene of intermittent guerrilla warfare between Zapatista and federal soldiers, Tepoztecans again sought refuge in the cerros.

The location of Tepoztlán in an intermediate position between tierra fría and tierra caliente gives it the advantages of an excellent climate and a rich semitropical flora without the disadvantages of the cold to the north or the tropical heat to the south. Tepoztecans are aware of these advantages and consider themselves
